EU Funded Project PERFECT: Cross Link to the AGROS project and Some Useful Insights

The Project PERFECT integrates the many benefits of green infrastructure into the planning and investment for the future of urban and rural areas. AGROS project aims to support individuals in acquiring and developing basic skills and key competences towards the design, implementation, use and sustainable management of green roofs for climate protection and environmental action, enhancing in this way individuals' civic response to major problems and solutions while the PERFECT project seeks to influence the policy-making process by raising awareness of the social, environmental and economic potential of green infrastructure.

To this purpose project partnership has published a new factsheet on the importance of green roofs and the opportunities they give us which might be interesting for our target audience as well. The factsheet examines the different types of green roof and the benefits that can be delivered through them. The factsheet also includes some case studies from across the PERFECT partnership.
